Forward...

In 2001, under funding provided by the Department of Human Services, the Australian Greek Welfare Society (AGWS) developed its first official 'Drug Education & Prevention' program – a product of many years' study and advocacy.

Under this program, AGWS identified numerous areas requiring attention, including (but not limited to)

- Improvement in the availability of drug education and family support
- Increased access to drug support services
- Drug education and prevention in bilingual schools
- Development of youth forums
- Positive parenting and family support groups

Furthermore, after receiving numerous calls from other organisations requesting assistance, it was decided that an ethno specific drug and alcohol services guide - identifying organisations and their services - was required.

It should be noted that the organisations listed herein are intended only as a guide for the provision of quality assistance. It is therefore essential that each client be assessed and directed to the most suitable service(s) based on their individual needs.

Sincere thanks are extended to those Drug & Alcohol organisations and individuals that allowed AGWS project officers to gather material for the development of this guide.
